BLOODY MARY WORLD COLLECTION

世界精选 血腥玛丽

Our Bloody Mary based on the original mix of vodka and tomato juice, a synergy of ingredients indigenous to the many shores the Portuguese ships landed on come together to create a cocktail that is fresh, smoky, spicy and rich in texture. The result is a marriage of the seductive hints of Oriental flavors with the robust Iberian components gathered from across the seven seas.

THE ST REGIS BAR

NEW YORK, NEW YORK 纽约, 纽约鸡尾酒

The distinctive tastes and seductive sounds of
New York come to life at The St. Regis Bar.

THE BIG APPLE (1.8 Liters) 488

The Big Apple was popularized as a name for New York City by John J. Fitz Gerald in a number of horse-racing articles for the New York Morning Telegraph in the 1920s. The earliest of these was a casual reference on 3rd May, 1921. The big apple used vodka, apple Liqueur, lemon juice and Apple Juice

BEE'S KNEES 108

The Bee's Knees, a sweet and citrusy cocktail, lives up to its moniker, and will no doubt leave you buzzing too. This is one to sip when under the thrall of a dark and hazy speakeasy.

BREAD BASKET SOUR 108

One of America's favorite spirits, whiskey, combines with a bright fruity blend of blackberries and lemon juice in this contemporary cocktail created for the Smithsonian's Raise a Glass to History.

THE ST. REGIS FRENCH 75 168

The St Regis French 75's, history is as murky as the morning after drinking a few: some believe it to be one of the few cocktails actually created during Prohibition, while others think it got its first pour as early as the Victorian era.

MANHATTAN 108

It's rumored that the Manhattan was first stirred up at the Manhattan Club in New York City in 1874. Legend has it, the drink was designed for a party thrown there by Jennie Jerome (Winston Churchill's mother).

MINT JULEP 108

The mix of bourbon, mint and sugar. Originated in the South sometime in the 1700s and gained massive popularity in 1938 when it first became the signature drink of the Kentucky Derby.

OLD FASHIONED 108

Known as the first true cocktail, the Old-Fashioned has gone through many incarnations since it first emerged in the early 1800s, from extra-fruity to kicked up with liqueur. But the basic mix of whiskey, Angostura bitters, sugar and a few dashes of water has outlasted all of the trends.

OLD TRADITIONED 108

Another version of old-fashioned cocktail, containing Spiced Rum, honey and orange bitters. It became the new trend of new trend of old traditioned classic drinks.

SOUTHSIDE 108

One story is that the Southside got its name thanks to (in true 1920s fashion) some gangsters on the South Side of Chicago looking for a way to cover up their not-so-great hooch, and then somehow morphed into the drink of choice at waspy East Coast country clubs thanks to its summer-y nature.

SAZERAC 108

The stiff mix of rye whiskey or, as it was originally made, Cognac, bitters, sugar and absinthe is the official cocktail of New Orleans.

THIS CONFLAGRATION NATION 108

Duncan Nicol, owner of San Francisco's legendary Bank Exchange bar, invented the pisco punch in the late 1800s. A mix of bourbon, carpano, mint syrup and apple juice, some of the drinks key ingredients went out of production long ago and became available again only recently.
